PEACE PROPOSAL
CAN SEE NO
BASIS FOR
DISCUSSIONSTATE DEPARTMENT ISSUES NO FORMAL STATEMENT BUT IN-DICATIONS ARE THAT NO CHANGE WILL BE MADE.

TERMS WERE EXPECTED

London Feels That Terms Are Hypocritical and in Line With Usual German Policy.[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Sept. 22.—The replies made by Germany and Austria to Pope Benedict's peace proposal contain nothing that will in any way alter the position of the United States as outlined in President Wilson's reply to the Pope.The replies as received here in Associated Press dispatches were closely studied today by officials and diplomats who gave indications that they were little less than had been expected.First examination of replies officials thought failed to disclose anything in the nature of terms, which would afford a basis for discussion.Secretary Lansing authorized no quotation of any opinion for the government, but it was clearly indicated at the state department that such consideration as had been given to the reply had failed to alter any reason for any alteration of the aims or intention of this government either in the conduct of the war or in any peace adjustment that may be undertaken later.Only Incomplete.
London, Sept. 22.—The incomplete parts of the reply of Germany and Austria to Pope Benedict's peace plea arrived before press time are given prominence by mentioning and referring to the receipt of the replies.The tenor of the headline, however, reflects the British attitude.
The paper conveys the document as "a hypocritical claptrap from Berlin and Vienna."The Daily Mail characterizes the Austrian reply as "a big document and contains on 'the new moves in the peace game' in which it says:"We are told that the German governments are arranging terms, with the pope and the government of Spain.
The nations stand on record. Germany has not as yet the slightest intention of accepting them."From the allies will never receive."
The Chronicle says that it is impossible to see the earnestness of Austrian Emperor's reply.Amsterdam, Sept. 22.—The text of the reply of Emperor Charles to Pope Benedict, as received here Friday, follows:Holy Father: With due veneration and deep emotion we take cognizance of the new representations your holiness in fulfillment of his duties and from entirety of your God, make to us and the heads of the other belligerent states with the noble intention of leading the heavily tried nations to a unity that will restore peace to the world.With a thankful heart we received this fresh gift of fatherly care which you, holy father, always bestow on all peoples, though anxious and from the depth of our heart we greet the moving exhortation which your holiness had addressed to the governments of the belligerent peoples.During this time we have always looked up to your holiness as to the highest personage, who, in virtue of his mission, which reaches beyond earthly things, and thanks to the high position of his duties held upon him, could have above the belligerent peoples and who is inaccessible to all influence, was able to find a way which may lead to the realization of our dearest wish, lasting and honorable peace for all peoples.Work for Early Peace.
"Since ascending the throne of our ancestors and full of anxiety for the people and men for the fate of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy, we have never lost sight of the high aim of restoring to our peoples an auspicious peace, and the result of peace. Soon after our accession to the throne it was vouchsafed in common with our allies to undertake a step which had been expected and prepared by our exalted predecessor, Francis Joseph, to pave the way for a lasting and honorable peace."We gave expression to this desire in a speech from the throne delivered at the opening of the Reichstag and in the following year, showing that we were striving after a peace that should free the future life of the nation from war and a threat for revenge, and shall secure the future generations to come from the employment of armed forces. Our joint government has in the meantime not failed in repeated and emphatic declarations, which could be heard by all the world, to give expression to our own will and to the desire of the Austro-Hungarian peoples to prepare an end to bloodshed by a peace such as your holiness has intended.For Right, Not Might.
"Happily in the thought that our desires from the first were directed toward the same object, which your holiness today characterizes as 'one and the same,' we have taken into close consideration of your holiness and practically of your holiness and have come to the following conclusions:"With deep rooted conviction we believe in the future arrangement of the world must be based on the elimination of armed forces, and in the total force of right and on the rule of international law and legality.
"We who are imbued with the hope that a strengthening of the sense ofRUSS EX-MINISTER TRIED FOR TREASON

General Soukhomlinoff.

General Soukhomlinoff, Russian ex-minister of war, is now on trial in Petrograd for treason. It is charged that he kept the Germans in constant touch with Russian war plans, and deliberately worked with the enemy, thus causing the needless death of hundreds of thousands of Russian soldiers.right would morally regenerate humanity. We support, therefore your holiness' view that the negotiations should and could lead to an understanding by which, with the creation of appropriate guarantees, armaments on land and sea and in the air might be reduced, simultaneously, recipro-cally and gradually to a fixed limit, whereby the high seas, which rightly belong to all nations of the world, may be freed from domination or paramountcy and opened equally for the use of all.

Conference is Urged

"Fully conscious of the importance of the promotion of peace on the method proposed by your holiness, namely, to submit international disputes to compulsory arbitration, we are also prepared to enter into negotiations regarding this proposal."If, as we most heartily desire, agreements should be arrived between the belligerents which would realize this sublime idea and thereby give security to the Austro-Hungarian monarchy for its unhampered future development, it can then not be difficult to find a satisfactory solution of the other questions which still remain to be settled between the belligerents in a spirit of justice and of a reasonable consideration of the conditions for existence of both parties.If the nations of the earth were to enter, with a desire for peace, into negotiations with one another, in the sense of your holiness' proposals, then peace could blossom forth from them.
The nations could attain complete freedom of movement on the high seas, heavy material burdens could be taken from them and new sources of prosperity opened to them.Guided by a spirit of moderation and conciliation, we see in the proposals of your holiness a sincere and valuable effort in a spirit of true impartiality to settle the matter in that way which is most just and equitable and lasting, and we earnestly hope our present enemies may be animated by the same ideas. In this spirit we beg that the Almighty may bless the work of peace begun by your holiness."

Reply of Kaiser.

The text of the German reply reads:
"Your holiness: Your eminence has been good enough, together with your letter of Aug. 12, to transmit to us the text of your most gracious letter, filled with grief at the devastations of the world war, makes an emphatic peace appeal to the Kaiser.
If the belligerents are to transmit to the Kaiser, as the Kaiser has done, the king has designed to acquaint me with your eminence's letter and to entrust the reply to me.""His majesty has been following for a considerable time with high interest and since regarding his high ness' efforts in a spirit of true impartiality to alleviate as far as possible the sufferings of the war and to hasten the end of hostilities. The Kaiser sees in the latest steps of his holiness and his noble and humane feeling, and cherishes a lively desire that for the benefit of the entire world the papal appeal may meet with success."Rome, Sept. 21.—The Vatican courier from Switzerland "L'Osservatore" has arrived at this evening with the Austrian and German replies to Pope Benedict's peace proposals. Cardinal Gasparri, secretary of state, said the courier arriving here next Wednesday should bring the replies.BOMB-PROOF CELLAR POPULAR IN LONDON

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

London, Sept. 22.—Bomb-proofs in office buildings are the latest in London.Many of the largest office buildings are constructing dugouts like the American employees during air raids. The usual dugout is a thick parapet of sand bags in the basement. The sand bags are covered with a layer of ground floor above the four feet thick. At the first alarm the office forces are ordered to flee to the cellar. Even if the building collapses the dugout would afford protection.In one big office building arrangements are made in the basement for the entire force of 800 employees with special emergency exits to the bomb-proofs. Other buildings are bombproofing the basement and dropping and wrecking the structure.Austin, Texas, Sept. 22.—Governor James E. Ferguson of Texas was found guilty by the senate high court of impeachment on a bill of impeachment by a vote of 27 to 4, this afternoon.MYSTERY SURROUNDS
DEATH OF AGED MANAGED TOWN OF JOHNSTOWN FARMER FOUND IN CORNER OF CORN FIELD WITH
BULLET THROUGH HEAD

RYAN ORDERS INQUEST

But Little Evidence Pointing to Suicide or Death at Hands of an Assailant.Tragic mystery surrounds the death of Fred Michaelis, an aged Johnstown farmer, whose bullet hole through his head in a secluded part of his farm three miles north of Johnstown at two o'clock yesterday afternoon. Though his own gun, a thirty-eight Smith & Wesson, was found near him with one shell discharged, certain phases of the matter were not directly indicative of a suicide and a coroner's inquest was ordered an inquest which was held this afternoon.But few facts evidencing suicide or death at the hands of an unknown person were brought out in the examination conducted by Coroner Ryan and Dr. Dike of Johnstown this morning. No motive for putting an end to his life could be learned either from his wife or from his niece or nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Blaskey, with whom the Michaelis made their home.
On the other hand, Mr. Michaelis has led a quiet life and has been determined had no enemies, so that nothing of one who would seek vengeance in death.Mr. Michaelis, though sixty-seven years old, has been enjoying good health and has apparently been in the best of spirits. Yesterday morning he left the home about ten o'clock for a fence. No one knows whether he took his revolver with him or not.
The dinner hour came, but nothing was seen of the old man. Shortly after one o'clock the family accompanied by his prolonged and unexplained absence, started a search.
Mr. Blaskey, the nephew, going along the fences. At two o'clock he came upon the body of his uncle in a corner of the corn field.The body was lying crumpled up on the ground, with his hat and stick near by. He had entered the field, coming out on the right side of the head almost directly opposite. The face and temple about the hole where the bullet entered were the only places showing evidence that the shot was fired at close range. The revolver, which was found about two hundred yards from the body, was empty. The bullet had evidently failed to penetrate the head, but had discharged the next shell had been discharged, the body would have been struck. Michaelis with his wife owned the farm in the town of Johnstown, though it is worked by the Blaskeys.Mrs. Blaskey is a niece of Mr. Michaelis and the family are the only indigenous relatives of the old couple.
The two families have made their home together for a long time with perfect tranquility, and the death of Michaelis is a great shock to them.
Whether the man was left-handed or not is expected to develop at the inquest this afternoon. It was right-handed, the coroner said. It was right-handed, the coroner said. It was right-handed, the coroner said.The utter absence of anyone in the community with whom Michaelis was known, as strong an argument against manslaughter. A verdict of suicide would be the result of superficial examination, but the matter in that

A LITTLE SLICE OF LIFE.

Ell W. Amsus is a prosperous business man. He has cleaned up a neat bit of money. By selling umbrellas down at Long Beach.

Where fair bathers are numerous. When a rain cloud is over a man's head appears Eli.

Appears also with a choice line of thirty-five cent umbrellas which he retails.

At two dollars a throw.

To whom does he sell them?

To the fat old dowagers and Tired business men?

Guess again.

He sells them to the sweet young things.

Who, loll upon the beach in Perfectly lovely bathing suits and are

Panic stricken when a rain cloud appears.

Eli has saved many a bathing suit

And many a dollar.

In days of old, when knights were bold, the king rode forth on his charger, wearing a suit that resembled a base-burning coal stove and a steel helmet which had a face or periculis to lower over the gate.

Next to his body he wore a glorified wire dishrag known as a shirt of mail. He carried a stout spear which was about thirty feet long and altogether, including medals, hardware and wire underclothes, he weighed in the vicinity of 1,500 pounds, in fact a few pounds more than his horse. When he met the enemy king and got busy with his jabber, there was a heluva time in Flinders. The fray sounded like a boiler factory and when the enemy king was knocked from his poor old, overworked, sway-backed horse he made a noise like the breaking up of a hard winter accompanied by a tin-soldier's wagon running away.

Nowadays when a king wants to get his name in the papers he has to get under an automobile hearse or off the fire escape of the place or be run over by a lawn mower.

Look at George V. All dressed up and no place to go.

The news from Nish is always welcomes. Nish is the only town in the Balkans that we pronounce with any degree of success.

How about the old-fashioned sweethearts who made up their minds they would live on love and kisses? Like everything else, love has gone up and a Mayfield Court plant a valuation of $10.00 on one lone kiss the other day. We don't believe any kiss in the world is worth it.

The ukulele fever has just struck Beloit, Wis. Beloit showed good sense in putting it off as long as possible. We are waiting for the craze to strike Boston, as it will sooner or later.

A person in Brooklyn says there is no hell. Well, then, in the words of Eddie Cantor, where has business gone to?

THE FAMOUS MISS RUBY LA RUE. I have high regard for Miss Ruby La Rue. Who doesn't go bawdy as other girls do.

And knit green gajammies. For Jack and me. Which make Sherman's famous quotation quite true.

In overalls gray. She's driving a gray. A patriot real is Miss Ruby La Rue. —H. C. Red Bank.

THE SONG OF THE GOLFER. I met a sad eyed golfer. Who sang this song to me; "I never make a hole in par."

"I'm never trouble free. The game is torment to my soul. I curse it like a Turk."

"I score perplexed me, and yet I'd rather golf than ark."

"My game is rotten all the time, I never get a drive, I'm lucky on a three-par hole. If I get down in five."

"I never get a follow through, My swing is mostly flake. I'd rather golf than work."

"It angers me to dub a shot."

"It's torture when I top. It's punishment to stand and see. A put that will not drop."

"Consumed with rage I tramp the rough. And fawn a pleasant smirk. A sufferer soul I am, and yet I'd rather golf than work."

"I do not play the game for fun, All that I get upon the links is bitter misery. I am a victim of despair."

"Rage, hate and sorrow lurk. Within my breast, and yet somehow I'd rather golf than work."

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

Zena Keefe, who in spite of her long stage career and many notable appearances in important picture productions, still enjoys the distinction of being the one of the youngest stars in the theatrical movement, will be seen this fall in a go-ahead war picture titled "Shut Out." The new production is considered by the little star as the most ambitious production in which she has ever appeared.

Miss Keefe is one of the interesting personalities of the stage that starting as more toys, practically grow up behind the footlights and act as naturally as they walk. She started as a child, being closely identified with the remarkable success of "The Fatal Wedding" and later becoming an established vaudeville headliner. Her long engagement with a movie comedy company made her a prominent screen star. Her appearances in feature pictures, of which "Brighten Thy Daughter" and "One Hour" are now enjoying exceptional popularity, and her screen record equals that of many of the older stars. Miss Keefe is only twenty-one years of age, having been born in San Francisco on June 25, 1896.

CLAYTON AND HOLMES

A NEW COMBINATION
Marguerite Clayton is to be Taylor Holmes' leading woman in one of his forthcoming comedy-dramas. The title of the picture will be announced shortly. Miss Clayton's last production was "The Night Worker," a feature in which she co-starred with Jack Gardner, the former musical comedy favorite. She won her stellar position as leading woman for "Brighten Thy Daughter" in a western picture, and has since starred in "The Prince of Graustark" and numerous others. Mr. Holmes, who is perhaps one of the best-known comedians of the speaking stage, is now making his debut in film in "Efficiency Boy's Courtship," a film version of the story of the same title by Clarence Budington Kelland.

"The Fighting Trail," screen adaptation from a novel by the same name from the pen of Cyrus Townsend Brundage, is almost ready for release.

Zena Keefe.

lease, J. Stuart Blackton is making it and William Duncan is leading man. It is being photographed in the Sierra Nevada.

Pat O'Malley, who became famous in his Edison days, is said to have been a circus rider before taking up stage work. His appearance with Lew Fields in "The Barker" seems to prove the statement.

"What do you want in the way of picture stories," is the burden of hundreds of letters coming to the studios. The reply is "any story that's a real story but—keep off war stuff."

A CLEVER LITTLE

COMEDY AT MYERS

"Make Yourself at Home" Proves to Be Nice, Clean Little Play That Was Enjoyed Thoroughly by a Large Audience.

Although the show is new and bears the earmarks of being "just out," it is safe to say that when the company has been through a few more work-outs they will have as good an attraction as the average person wants to see.

"Make Yourself at Home" is taken from the book by that name written by Harry Segall, and the music is by Earl Carroll, who is the author of "So Long Letty."

A well known cast goes a long way toward making this place successful. Among them were seen Mamie Weller, best remembered for her fine work in "The Lady in Red," and Florence Lawrence, last seen with Henry W.

Savage's "Sari." The play was in three acts with eighteen musical numbers, all of which went over very well indeed.

AMUSEMENTS

(Notices furnished by the theatres.)

MYERS THEATRE.

At Jolson and the big Winter Garden show, "Robinson Crusoe, Jr." a notable musical extravaganza, with a brilliant cast of supporting specialists, will be the attraction at the Myers theatre on Sunday, Sept. 30.

"Robinson Crusoe, Jr." was a big Broadway hit and maintained its prestige as a box-office record breaker throughout its tour from coast to coast.

Al Jolson needs no introduction, but it may be interesting to know that his role of Good Friday in the story book spectacle is a thoroughly happy one, and affords a legitimate and consistent reason for the appearance of a blackface star in a whiteface production. His experience, too, with cannibals, pirates, sprites, and unheard of things that crop up on a mythical desert island afford unlimited opportunities for fun and frolic.

In the company are Claude Fleming, once leading man to Sir Herbert Tree; Lawrence D'Orsay of "The Earl of Pawtucket" fame; Kitty Donner, well known here and "the dancing toast of the great 'White Way'"; Frank Carter, Mabel Withee, Bowers, Crocker & Walters, noted "rubes" of vaudeville; Grace & Berkes, Isabel Rodriguez, Adolf Blome and many others.

This production is unusually elaborate, the company an enormous one, and with its beautiful scenery and costumes, make a capacity load for a special train.

Temperance Talks

A Voter's Observations.
During the present month public schools in every township, village and city in the United States began another year of service, and colleges and universities opened their doors to the young people of the country. Here for nine months the coming citizens of the American republic will receive training and instruction and there will be imparted to them high ideals of life and service. It is a good and wholesome influence which will mean much to the welfare of the people everywhere.

In contrast we call attention to the saloon, an institution of a different character. Its business is to vend poison in the form of intoxicating liquor. It benefits no one except those engaged in the liquor traffic, but it enables a few, principally brewers and distillers to accumulate vast fortunes by exploiting the common people. It is a public menace and a curse to humanity.

The intelligent voter has been watching this thing. He has seen money drained from communities where it belongs and ought to remain. He has observed poverty, ignorance, vice and crime and a lower standard of private and public morals. He has seen crowded almshouses, prisons and insane asylums; and he has come to know that these conditions are all brought about in part by the saloon. And finally he has seen the political institutions of great states corrupted and dominated by the liquor traffic. These things are repulsive to decent people. Good citizens will not tolerate them. Already the saloon has been driven out of many states, and we believe the time is not far distant when it will not be permitted to exist anywhere in the United States.

The Hillman

By

E. PHILLIPS OPENHEIM

Author of "The Double Traitor,"
"The Master Mummer," etc.

(Copyright, The Frank A. Munsey Co.)

"You are overdrawn at your bank, your bills are heavier than ever this month, and there are five or six special accounts—one for some electric flings, another for the hire of a motor-car—which ought to be paid."

Louise was looking up at the ceiling. She sighed.

"It would be nice," she said, "to have someone to pay one's bills and look after one, and see that one wasn't too extravagant."

"Well, you need someone badly," So-phy asserted. "I suppose you mean to make up your mind to it some day." "I wonder!" Louise murmured. "Did you know that that terrible man from the hills—John Strangewey's brother—has been here this morning? He frightened me to death."

"What did he want?" So-phy asked curiously.

"He was a trifle vague," Louise remarked. "I gathered that if I don't send John back to Cumberland, he's going to strangle me."

"Are you going to send him back?" So-phy asked.

"I am in an uncertain frame of mind," Louise confessed. "I really can't decide about anything."

"I want to tell you this, Louise," So-phy said firmly. "John is getting to know a great many people, and you know how men talk at the clubs. Aren't you sometimes afraid that he will hear things and misunderstand?"

"I am expecting it every day," Louise admitted.

"Then why don't you end it?" So-phy asked.

"Which way?"

There was a silence between the two women. The muffled street noises from outside became the background to a stillness which grew every moment more oppressive. Louise returned to her former attitude. She looked steadily before her, her face supported by her hands.

So-phy grew paler and paler as the minutes passed. There was something strange and almost beautiful in Louise's face, something which had come to her lately, and which shone from her eyes only at rare intervals.

"You care for him, I believe!" So-phy cried at last. "You care for him?"

"Louise did not move.

"Why not?" she whispered.

There was a ring at the front door. Louise, from her place, could see the long, gray bonnet of John's car. At once before she could speak, he was announced.

"It's an atrocious time to come, I know—" he began apologetically.

"You're in time for some coffee, anyhow," Louise told him cheerfully. "And I know So-phy is glad to see you, because if you hadn't come, I was going to make her go through some accounts."

"You know I am always glad to see you," Louise murmured, pointing to a chair. "So-phy and I have been having a most interesting discussion, but we have come to a bit of a snag."

"I really can't," John explained. "To ask if you cared to come and see a collection of pictures. There's an Italian—a furnace, of course—just no-packed his little lot and set them up over a curiosity shop in Clifford street. He is sending out cards for next week, but I could take you today—that is, if you would care about it. We can go somewhere for some tea afterward."

Louise made a little grimace. "What bad luck!" she exclaimed. She stopped short. She felt that by her hesitation she had, in a sense, committed herself.

"I have promised to go and have tea with the prince at Seyre House," she said. "It is an engagement we made last week."

John set down his empty coffee cup with a clatter. An inexplicable but dominating fury seemed to have suddenly assailed him. He took out a cigarette and tried to light it. So-phy, after watching him for a moment in astonishment, slipped out of the room. Louise came over to his side.

"Are you really so much disappointed?" she asked. "I am so sorry! If I had known that you were coming for me, I would have kept myself free."

"It isn't that exactly," John answered. "It's something I can't altogether explain. If you don't mind, I think I will be going. There is nothing I must put right."

He left without another word. She watched him step into his new motor-car and drive away a little recklessly, considering the crowded state of the streets. He drew up, a few minutes later, outside the club in Pall Mall, where, as it happened, he had lunched that day with the prince of Seyre.

He found the prince still sitting in the smoking room, reading a review, over the top of which he glanced up as John approached, and nodded nonchalantly.

"Back again?" he murmured. "I came back to have a word with you, prince."

The prince laid down the review, keeping his finger in the place. "Delighted!"

"Not long ago," John went on. "In this room, someone—I think it was Major Charters—asked you what you were doing this afternoon. You replied that you were engaged. There were several others present, and they began to chaff you. Perhaps I joined in—I don't remember. I think that it was Major Charters who asked you, to use his own words, whether your appointment was with a lady. You replied in the affirmative. There was a loud volley of chaff. You listened without contradiction to many references concerning the lady and the afternoon's engagement."

The prince nodded slightly. His face remained quite expressionless. "As a matter of fact," John concluded, "I have discovered by the purest accident that Miss Maurel is to be your guest this afternoon at Seyre House."

The prince inclined his head gently. He remained monosyllabic.

"Well?"

John frowned heavily. "Can't you see," he went on bluntly, "that if any one of those men who were present, and heard what was said about your guest, found out afterward that it was Miss Maurel who came to see you—well, I need not go on, need I? I am sure you understand. The things which were hinted at could not possibly apply to her. Would you mind sending a note to Miss Maurel and asking her to have tea with you some other afternoon?"

"And why the deuce should I do that?" the prince asked, a trifle paler, but entirely self-possessed.

"To oblige me," John replied.

The prince wiped his eyelids carefully upon his handkerchief.

"Mr. Strangewey, you are a very amiable young man," he said equally, "to whom I have tried to show some kindness for Miss Maurel's sake. I putting it plainly—what business this is of yours."

"It is my business," John declared, "because I have asked Miss Maurel to be my wife, and because I am hoping that some day, before very long, she will consent."

The prince sat quite still in his chair, his eyes fixed upon a certain spot in the carpet. He had not even the appearance of being engaged in thought. He seemed only steeped in a sort of passivity. Finally, with a sigh, he rose to his feet.

"My young friend," he decided, "your statement alters the situation. I did not credit you with matrimonial intentions. I must see what can be done."

His lips relaxed ever so slightly—so slightly that they showed only a glimpse of his teeth in a straight, hard line. He looked at John mildly, and his words seemed destitute of all offense; yet John felt the lightning was playing around them.

"I shall write a note to Miss Maurel," the prince promised, as he made his way toward the writing table, and ask her to visit me upon some other afternoon."

CHAPTER XVIII.

Back again to Louise's little house in Kensington; and a few minutes' masterful pleading, and then success. Louise wrapped herself up and descended to the street by his side.

For an hour or more John drove steadily westward, scarcely speaking more than a chance word. It was twilight when he brought the car to a standstill. Louise raised her veil and looked up.

"Well?" she asked inquiringly.

He pushed back the throttle on his steering wheel and stopped the engine. Then he turned toward her.

"I have something to say to you," he said. "I have brought you here that I may say it in my own way and in my own atmosphere."

"This is like you!" Louise murmured. "You had to bring me out to a hilltop, on the dreariest hour of a wet March afternoon, to tell me—what?"

"First of all," John began, "I will answer a question which you have asked me three times since we started out this afternoon. You wanted to know how I found out that you were not going to tea with the prince. Well, here is the truth: I asked the prince to change the day of your visit to him."

Her fine, silky eyebrows came a little closer together.

"You asked him that?" she repeated. John nodded.

"And he consented?"

"I will explain," John continued. "It was a most unfortunate circumstance, but in the club, after lunch, the subject of the prince's afternoon came up. He was tied at home, he said, from four to six. Some of the men began to chaff him, and suggested that he was entertaining some lady friend, his latest favorite—well, I dare say you can imagine the rest," John broke off.

Her fingers played nervously for a moment with the edge of the rug. She drew it higher up.

"Well, when I left your house the first time this afternoon, I went straight back to the prince. I pointed out to him that after what had been said, as it might become known that you were his guest to-day, it would be better for him to postpone your visit. He agreed to do so."

"Was that all that passed between you?"

"Not quite," John replied. "He asked me what concern it was of mine, and I told him I hoped that some day you would be my wife."

She sat quite still, looking down upon the flaring lights. She was filled with a restless desire to escape, to start the motor herself, and rush through the wet air into London and safety. And side by side with that desire she knew that there was nothing in the world she wanted so much as to stay just where she was, and to hear just the words she was going to hear.

"So much for that!" John proceeded. "And now please listen. I have brought you out here because under these conditions I feel more master of myself and my thoughts, and of things I want to say to you. Something takes me by the throat in your little drawing-room, with its shaded lights, its perfume of flowers, and its atmosphere of perfection. You sit enthroned there like the queen of a world I know nothing of, and all the time letters and flowers and flattering invitations are showered upon you from the greatest men in London. The atmosphere there stifles me, Louise. Out here you are a woman, and I a man, and those other things fall away. I have tried my best to come a little way into sympathy with your life. I want you now to make up your mind to come down a little way into mine."

She felt the sudden snapping of every nerve in her body, the passing away of all sense of will or resistance. She was conscious only of the little movement toward him, the involuntary yielding of herself. She lay back in his arms, and the kisses which closed her eyes and lips seemed to be working some strange miracle.

She was in some great empty space, breathing wonderful things. She was on the hilltops, and from the heights she looked down at herself as she had been—a poor little white-faced puppet, strutting about on an overheated stage, in a fetid atmosphere of adulation, with a brain artificially stimulated, and a heart growing cold with selfishness. She pitied herself as she had been. Then she opened her eyes with a start of joy.

"How wonderful it all is!" she murmured. "You brought me here to tell me this?"

"And to hear something!" he insisted.

"I have tried not to, John," she confessed, amazed at the tremble of her sweet, low voice. Her words seemed like the confession of a weeping child. "I cannot help it. I do love you! I have tried not to so hard, but now—now I shall not try any more!"

They drove quietly down the long hill and through the dripping streets. Not another word passed between them till they drew up outside her door. She felt a new timidity as he handed her out, an immense gratitude for his firm tone and inimitable grace.

Dinner Stories

There was about her a poise that comes only from litigation. She was not born yesterday, obviously.

"George," she faltered, and her rich, mellow voice awakened a responsive thrill in the heart which was pumping blood into the arm about her waist. "I'm afraid to marry you."

He was only human, and he was deeply stirred.

"Why, my darling?" he demanded, in agonized tones.

She shaded her magnificent eyes with her curved lashes, as she had been taught to do years previously at a boarding school.

"Because, George," she murmured, "you are my thirteenth—and I am so superstitious!"

The customer was paying the merchant an account and handed over a wad of twenty $5 bills.

Carefully the merchant placed the notes on the counter, and wetting the tips of his finger he counted them one by one.

"I noticed," remarked the customer smilingly, after the merchant had placed the wad in his inside pocket, "that you didn't 'dick' up the last one."

"No," was the canny reply. "I dinna dae more than look at the one. That's guid enough for me without touching it; there might be another underneath it."

Condors and Ronders, both being the fathers of growing families were discussing the rearing and upbringing of children.

"Yes," said Ronders, "a great deal depends on the formation of early habits."

"I know it," said Ronders, with a very little smile. "When I was a baby my mother hired a woman of wheel me about, and I've been pushed for money ever since."

A HEAVY BURDEN

Back Back Makes Life Miserable for Many Janesville People. A bad back is a heavy burden. A burden at night when bedtime comes.

Just as bothersome in the morning. Ever try Doan's Kidney Pills for it? Know they are for kidney backache—and for other kidney ills? If you don't some Janesville people do.

Read a case of it: Mrs. Milza O. Johnson, 118 North Terrace St., Janesville, says: "I was troubled with a weak back and continual pains. I had a miserable feeling across my loins and a heavy, bearing down pain which came from kidney trouble. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at the People's Drug Co., and they greatly benefited me."

OVER EIGHT YEARS LATER, Mrs. Johnson said: "I have the same confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills now as when I first recommended them. I know they are true."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Johnson has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Things That Were Hinted Could Not Possibly Apply to Her.
